

Rina Fiorenzi

As the Head of Talent Acquisition for Berke Executive Search, Rina is responsible for identifying and attracting candidates that precisely meet our clients' requirements. Leveraging a diverse background as a human resources generalist, Rina is uniquely positioned to attract, connect with, and qualify candidates for senior-management positions. With a pharmaceutical and life sciences background spanning more than 25 years, Rina has a depth and breadth of insight into market dynamics and organizational development that simply can't be matched.

A lifelong human-resources professional, Rina began her career in the chemicals industry in 1985. She worked for Essex Chemical Corporation for ten years before joining DSM Nutritional Products, effecting her transition to the life sciences industry. After a very successful tenure there, Rina sought a transition to a client-facing firm where she could leverage her skills and experience to affect a broader impact across the industry. In 2016, Rina joined Berke as our Head of Talent Acquisition.

Since taking up the mantle, Rina has shown a remarkable ability to truly connect with candidates, enabling her to assess them in a very multidimensional way. She also calls on her years of experience with organizational integration and acquisitions to identify candidates best suited to usher our clients' companies through periods of transition. In addition, Rina's role often calls for her to mentor candidates, guiding them through the complex process of deciding whether to accept a new leadership role, and it's this aspect of her job that she most enjoys.
